Master's Research Project, Jamia Millia Islamia, Delhi, India

Testing Standard Phillips Curve Trade Off in India (2017 – 2018)

- The main purpose of this study was to test whether the standard Phillips curve results indeed hold for India or not. We also proposed to test whether the rise or fall in prices (inflation), in India leads or lags the changes in GDP (unemployment).
- Involved the use of Eviews, SPSS and R.

- The absence of any significant short-run or long-run relationship between CPI and GDP reflected that the inflationary pressures in general have not been due to expansionary demand policies but due to several structural rigidities in both the public and private sector supply side.

Discretionary Monetary Policy and Macroeconomic Performance in India (2017 – 2018)

ENTREPRENEURIAL EXPERIENCE

Founder, UniClick, Delhi, India
2015 - 2016

A start-up, whose objective was to organize and customize many aspects of a student life at universities, leading to a better learning experience. We worked on the idea for about six months thereby gaining rich experience covering all aspects of a start-up. This venture even though could not blossom taught me an important lesson of starting small.
